Corporation Commission takes Open Meetings on the Road Commissioner Andy Tobin to Begin an Eight-Month “Rural Corp Comm Tour”

(Phoenix)—The Corporation Commission will be hitting the road in order to reach out to rural residents around the state. Starting in March, Commissioner Andy Tobin will begin an eight-month tour to rural communities where he will hold town hall meetings and participate in the monthly Open Meeting before the public via teleconferencing.

“As the newest Commissioner I want to involve all Arizonans and bring the Arizona Corporation Commission directly to the people,” said Commissioner Tobin. “We need people from all across the state, not just those in Maricopa County, to weigh in and have their voices heard.”

One of the biggest challenges facing many rural communities is safe, reliable water. Small water companies have been struggling for years to repair critical infrastructure.

The Commission is supporting HB2331, which will help provide grants to those water companies.

On March 1st, Tobin will hold a town hall at Yuma City Hall starting at 9 am where he will take questions and facilitate presentations by various utilities. On March 2nd he will participate in the Commission’s monthly Open Meeting via telephone at Yuma City Hall and invites residents to attend and watch the meeting via live-streaming.

In April, Commissioner Tobin will be in Mohave County and in May Navajo and Apache Counties. Check back with www.azcc.gov for event times and locations.
