The hearing will continue for several days at the Tucson Corporation Commission Office that is inside the Arizona State Building at 400 W. Congress Street in Utilities Hearing room 222. The public will have an opportunity to speak on the first day of the hearing.

The Commissioners are expected to consider the case in June, after recommendations have been made by the judge overseeing the hearing.

The Commissioners will also be holding public comment sessions with residents impacted. The first one will be Tuesday, March 22nd in Nogales, the second will be Thursday March 31st in Kingman and Lake Havasu. The times and locations will be announced at a later date.
